IBW-YORKISMS.

NEW YORK, June 21, 1870.

Fr. Our Own Correspondent,

'e attendance at the various churches last Sulay was an exemplification of the difficulty eforoperly fulfilling one's duty during the heed term. The way of salvation is not easy ding the summer solstice, and people, far fra accepting the rise in the thermometer as as indication of a thermal future, are only teglad to ignore any meditation whatever un the subject. Also, some of our divines, in oer to rouse a failing attention, select subjects iglaring contrast to those which are compuly accepted as being of the regulation pulp pattern. The popular questions of the day fush them with fodder for texts. The Mc-Irland divorce case supersedes the moral of hry Magdalene and the woman taken in sultery, and the death of Charles lckens that of the death of Jesus Christ. he story of the Crucifixion seems trite beside ie lesson of the Beethoven Centennial, and pular preachers' texts are selected from the pigrams of the newspapers instead of the erses of the Bible. Mr. Beecher's morning ervice, for instance, consisted of a lecture on osthumous fame, instead of a sermon on justication by faith, and Mr. Frothingham's 'Spiritual Mission of Music" took its key-note rom Parepa and Gilmore and that big Jubilee rhich had plenty of jingle in it, and only acked the Jim to make it complete. To point sermon with references to the current events d the day is perfectly legitimate, but it is a ery different thing to make these events themelves the texts upon which the aphorisms of he sermons are to be pinned.

Slaves in Dry Goods Stores.

A considerable sensation is occasioned among the proprietors of dry-goods stores by the attention which has been publicly drawn to the ruelty of the regulations in regard to the femiline employes. The same rules, indeed, obtain vith respect to both sexes, but it is in regard to he girls and women more particularly that compassion has been asked. At the southeast corner of Fourteenth street and Sixth avenue stands a store which is rapidly acquiring a mique reputation second to none in the city. Everything can be bought there, from a shoeacer to a chandelier, a broom to a Brussels carpet. The prices are remarkably cheap, and of tourse the store is crowded from morn until right. Few of the purchasers reflect, or would a e if they did reflect, upon the cost to employes at which this cheapness in price and versatility in merchandise are maintained. The employes are exclusively feminine, and the salaries vary between $3 and $10 per week, by far the greater number being in proximity to the former amount. The hours at which they are required to be present are from eight to six. The rules governing them are more stringent than in any other store, of whatever kind, in the city. They are not only not allowed to sit for a moment during those long ten hours, but they are not allowed to leave the store, or even their places behind the counter, unless required to do so by their duties, or through the permission of the superintendent, or on account of sickness or death. If, under these conditions, she remains longer than ten minutes, a very searching inquiry is made as to the why and the wherefore, and unless satisfactory explanations are made, a deduction that can illy be spared is made from the salary. Where more than one deduction is leave the reader to calculate how much would remain from wages of $3! The restrictions in regard to talking are equally severe. Absolute silence must be maintained, with the exception of such conversation as may be necessary in transacting the duties of the position. When this rule is broken a similar stern deduction is made from the salary. But it is upon the feminine cashiers that the system of fines falls with peculiar severity. At the end of he day, when the cash-books are added up, if the amount of money in the drawer exceeds that alled for, a corresponding amount is deducted rom the clerk's salary. In like manner if the ash-books call for more than is positively on h and, a similar fine is imposed. Under this condition of things it is no wonder that the heartless shopman who controls these slaves is apidly becoming a millionaire. Similar customs [are in vogue at innumerable other tores in the city, but the one in question stands t the head of the list. Some of them have marted so under the publicity given to their cruelty as to take the trouble to send cards to he newspapers weakly endeavoring to explain hard facts away, and signed by elerks and saleswomen who were threatened with instant dis-

Amusements. Amusements are very dull, this being the eary close of the season. The Fifth Avenue Theatre is the only one at which the audiences re crowded, and the applause thoroughly enuine: but even Fernande must cease to draw if this kind of weather lasts. At Wallack's Mr. Brougham is performing in a drama with aquite hot enough name to keep the auditorium empty, and making idiotically silly speeches before the curtain. That man will end at Ble omingdale yet, take my word for it. For the rest, every other actor is taking a benefit. It is dargerous to a theatrical critic's pockets for him to be found alone in his den. He is sure to be conronted with some usher, agent, manager, or ther beneficiary, and requested to "do something for us." To this an unhesitating assent is given, the critic supposing that the "something" refers to a brief complimentary notice. Not so, however. "Oh well, then," exclaims the beneficiary, drawing out a bundle of tickets, "how many will you take, then, at $1.50 apiece?" For this reason, I repeat, it is not good for the theatrical critic, who is easily approached, to be found too much alone. Madame Parepa.

missal in case they refused their autographs.

This lady sails for Europe to-morrow, and this fact has been made the occasion for the most extravagant eulogy upon her by her New York friends. If the eulogy was confined to her Immense merit as a singer, there would not be a word of contradiction to offer, but it unites with admiration of her as an artist an intense delight in the beauty of her private character. Here a little mistake is made. She is a great singer, but she is as much saturated with small professional jealousy as probably any cantatrice living. Her envy of artists who receive equal applause with herself is intolerably repugnant to one of any generosity, and of itself would be s: fficient to obscure an otherwise perfect character. As for her singing, we all know that is only a little lower than the angels'! But it does irk one to hear a public talent mixed up with an imaginary private excellence, and sometimes mistaken for it. Outside her wonderful voice there is certainly nothing to endear Parepa personally to the public.

Seaside Humility. Life at hotels is no longer the invariable rule at the seaside. Cottages have been run up and are renting by the score at Long Branch. The relatives and friends of the family are respect-ton prefer to take with them as much as is pos-sible of the evaluate and one's home. Con-wood street, on Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock. sible of the exclusiveism of one's home. Consequently the cottage may be said to be coming up and the hotel to be going down. Those of the "best people" who do not go to Europe turn their backs upon the immense caravanserals of a former date, and choose some quiet spot, within sound of the surf, where the household expenses are not quite so enormous as the hotel bill, and where one at least has the privilege of being comfortable with what he has paid for. At least such appears to be the custom this season at Long Branch. ALT BABA.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

"The Lancers" at the Walnut. Theatre-going in the hot weather is certainly open to some serious objections, and by the time the dog-days fairly set in, those managers who do not run their establishments just for the fun of the thing generally have the alternative presented to them of shutting up shop or of sinking the profits of the past season. The consequence is that the legitimate drama is apt to languish during the summer, and after the fourth of July we are generally reduced to a variety show, and perhaps an occasional troupe of wandering minstreis, who receive the patronage of those who wish to be amused, and who think that it is no uncomfortable in a theatre than is outside. At this date, however, before the rush for the sea-side has fairly commenced, there are a great many people who are willing to be entertained if something entertaining but not too exciting is presented, and it is therefore a nice question for managerfal tact to provide such a performance as will be refreshing rather than exhausting to the audience. The management of the Walnut has apparently hit upon just the right thing for the season in the military play of The Lancers, which was produced last evening with the leading parts sustained by a number of clever artists from New York. The Lancers is suggestive of the best efforts of the author of Ours and Caste. The plot is simple, but the interest is maintained with remarkable skill from first to last, and the dialogue is neat and pointed, and free from the milk-and-waters suggestion that is one of the main faults of all of Mr. Robertson's pieces. A more attractive play has not been produced here for a long time, and the successful run it enjoyed at Wallack's is not to be wondered at. With scarcely an exception the parts are well sustained, and the piece is given with a completeness and finish that are in the highest degree pleasurable. Miss Louise Moore, as the heroine, "Estelle Duvernay," acts with grace and feeling, and Mr. Charles Wyndham, as the hero, "Victor de Charles Wyndham, as the hero, "Victor de Courcy," is easy, natural, and, when occasion Courcy," demands, forcible.

The most artistic impersonation, however, is that of "Colonel Epee," by Mr. Neil Warner, who certainly gives a striking life-like representation of the stern disciplinarian and martinet, but really warm-hearted and magnani-mous gentleman. Miss Amelia Harris is also entitled to praise for a capital performance in the part of "Madame d'Aplomb," the Colonel's sister, a genuine old campaigner, who could command the regiment better than "my brother the Colonel" himself. The remaining parts are given in creditable style, and the piece alto-gether is well worthy of the patronage of the

The City Amusements. AT THE ARCH the variety troupe that appeared last night contains a number of clever performers in various lines of business, and the enter tainment is one that is well calculated to please the taste of a large portion of the public. A good variety performance is after all what seekers for amusement will incline to during the warm weather, and the combination at the Arch presents a number of interesting features that ought to attract good audiences.

AT THE WALNUT the drama of The Lancers will be repeated this evening. AT DUPREZ & BENEDICT'S OPERA HOUSE Mile. Zoe will appear this evening in the dramas of Flowers of the Forest and Nita.

THE LATEST NEWS.

The Thompson-Eric Ralicond Case. SARATOGA, June 21 .- The trial of the case of John W. Thompson and others against the Eric Railroad commenced to-day before Justice A. Backes, of the Supreme Court. The action is for dividend on preferred stock. Shearman and W. A. Beach, for defendants, moved for trial by jury. The motion was denied and exceptions taken. Frank Thompson, for plaintiffs, read the pleadings in the case.

The plaintiffs claimed dividends on preferred stock. He gave a history of the organization of the company, the issue of preferred stock, and the pledge of 7 per cent. dividends out of the net earnings. The plaintiffs claim that all earnings over the running expenses and not of necessary repairs are liable for dividends. The gross earnings for 1868 were over $14,000,000; that the defendants are not entitled to withhold the dividend on preferred stock and buy new railroads, and make permanent improvements out of the earnings. The defendants raise an issue on the definition of net earnings.

Justice Potter on June 16 made an order for delivery to the defendants to allow plaintiff to inspect all the books and papers bearing on the subject of the suit, and more particularly the transactions with John S. Eldridge and payment to him of $500,000, and also with the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad, Richard Schell, Frank Work, C. Vanderbilt, and others are named.

Justice Barnard stayed proceedings on this order, but Justice Engalls on Saturday set aside Justice Barnard's order.

The defendant moved to dismiss the complaint, but the motion was denied and exceptions were taken; and then, in order to afford time to avail themselves of the writ of discovery, plaintiffs asked an adjournment, which was granted.

CONGRESS.

Continued from the Third Edition The question recurring on Mr. Ramsey's proposition to repeal the franking privilege, a large number of amendments were proposed, only one of which was adopted, to wit.—Prohibiting any allow unce for stamps or increased pay to Senators or Representatives in consequence of the franking repeal.

Mr. Ramsey's amendment as amended was then rejected was 28, nave 28.

Mr. Ramsey's amendment as amended was then rejected —yeas 26, nays 28.

The following was the vote:
Yeas—Messrs, Boreman. Buckingham, Cameron. Casserly, Cattell, Chandler, Conkling, Cragin, Davis, Ferry, Hamlin, Harlan, Howe, Howell, McCreery, Morton, Pratt, Ramsey, Schurz, Scott, Sherman. Sprague, Trumbull, Willey, Wilson, Yates—28.

Nays—Messrs. Ames, Bayard, Brownlow, Carpenter, Cole, Corbett, Drake, Fowler, Gilbert, Hamilton (Maryland), Harris, McDonald, Morrill (Vt.), Nye, Osborn, Pomeroy, Pool, Rice, Robinson, Ross, Sawyer, Spencer, Stewart. Sumner, Thayer, Vickers, Warner, Williams—28.

The bill then passed, and at 250 the Senate proceeded to the consideration of the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill.

Continued from the Fourth Edition. Mr. Schenck suggested to insert the words "referring also to all the proceedings heretofore had in the case."
Mr. Logan said he had yielded to his colleague with the understanding that he would move the previous question, and he objected to any amendments being offered to his and he objected to any amendments being offered to his resolution.

At the conclusion of Mr. Farnsworth's remarks, Mr. Logan moved the previous question and resisted all the appeal made to him to withdraw it.

Mr. Schenck suggested to the gentleman from Illinois whether other members might not have in view the same object he (Mr. Logan) had, but different views as to the way of reaching it, and whether it was absolutely essential that they should continue to pursue the gentleman in his particular way.

Mr. Logan replied that it was no more necessary to follow him than it was for the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Schenck) to exercise a perfect tyranny over the House for four weeks. If the gentleman did not like the resolution he might vote against;it, but he (Logan) would not accept dictation from any member of the House
